SURGEONS IN SESSION

Annual Convention of B. & O. Medical Men Opens.

COLOR VISION IS DISCUSSED

Stricter Examination of Train Crews for Visual Defects Is Urged—Dr. Bond Explains His System of Color Sense Tests—Claim Agent Pays Tribute to Physicians.

Discussions on surgery and the affairs pertaining to the medical department of a great transportation company were features of the eighteenth annual convention of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Surgeons, held in the Arlington Hotel yesterday morning.

Dr. E. S. Montgomery, of Pittsburgh, president of the association, called the assemblage to order, the session being opened with a prayer by Rev. Donald C. McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of this city.

Commissioner Macfarland made an address of welcome in behalf of the District of Columbia. During the talk he referred to the Terra Cotta tragedy, urging the physicians to make the physical examinations of trainmen and engineers so strict as to assure the impossibility of such accidents, which might result from color blindness or other disability. "Your preventive work in the examination of engineers and trainmen is more important than your remedial work. In it all you can take pride in serving the history of Washington, but of the country," said Mr. Macfarland.

Claim Agent Records Appreciation. In behalf of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, M. J. G. Pangborn welcomed the members of the association, assuring them of the support of the company in their work.

Dr. Montgomery responded, followed by George Hamilton, local counsel of the company in this city, and S. R. Barr, superintendent of railroads, of Baltimore.

"The relations of physicians and surgeons to the claims department" was the topic of discussion by Dr. C. W. Egan, claim agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. Mr. Egan assured the members of the association that if it were not for them he would not have been as successful in his work as claim agent as he had been. He also said that unless physicians cannot be depended upon at all in arriving at a settlement of claims for railroad damages.

At the afternoon session Dr. I. R. Trimble, of Baltimore, surgeon-in-chief of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, opened the afternoon session with "Injuries to the Liver" as his topic.

Dr. Bond Explains Color Plan. Chairman Montgomery called upon Dr. S. B. Bond, of Baltimore, for his treatise on "The examination of employees and applicants for employment as to their color sense." A system now used by the Baltimore and Ohio Company was shown by Dr. Bond. It consisted of a box of several balls of various colors, red, green, blue, and yellow.

The candidate is to choose the different shades of each fundamental color and place them in a pigeon-hole with rows for each color of the same variety. The results of his examination are written on a card and the cards are kept on file.

Dr. F. B. Loring opened the discussion which followed. "There are men in the employ of railroads who could not pass a successful examination of this sort," he said, "who, by intuition, or force of habit, are able to perceive the difference in signal lights. Though no accidents have as yet been attributed to color blindness, still when the first one comes it will be too late, and to avoid this the tests should be in the hands of unprejudiced physicians, and made so that a man of imperfect color vision could not pass."

"From what I have seen of Dr. Bond's system I know of no better device of its kind. This method is a sufficient test." A reception and banquet were held last night at the Arlington by the visiting physicians. The reception room was filled to overflowing with the families and guests of the members, who were served with supper while a Hungarian band in an adjoining room played forlorn music.

When supper was finished, the hall was cleared for dancing, and the remainder of the evening was spent in that delightful pastime.

REYNOLDS WINS DINNER BETS

Customs Receipts Run Ahead of Secretary's Estimate.

Belief that Total for Present Year Would Exceed $330,000,000 Is Borne Out by Figures.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury James Reynolds is happy. Also, he is contemplating the joy of having his friends pay for seventeen dinners, one for each day for more than half a month.

The dinners will be due him, from the fact that the present indications are that the customs receipts for the fiscal year, ending June 30, will be something like $322,000,000.

Some time ago Mr. Reynolds wagered a friend at dinner that the receipts for the year would run 10 per cent greater than last year, or $320,000,000. At the beginning of the week, after many other friends had heard of his belief and had come in to get a bet down, believing it was "easy," the Assistant Secretary was $100,000 ahead of the game.

At the close of business last night the total receipts had amounted to the enormous total of $328,000,000, leaving but $2,000,000 due in three days.

The money has been coming in at the rate of almost $100,000 a day, and while Mr. Reynolds anticipates the receipts will run not less than $322,000,000, he is taking no more dinner bets on the proposition. It was announced yesterday that the surplus for the year just ending will be between $50,000,000 and $55,000,000, leaving a working balance in the Treasury of something like $55,500,000.

It is interesting to note that of the immense receipts, which have averaged a little better than $1,000,000 for each working day, New York has furnished about two-thirds, so that by the end of the year, with a total of $322,000,000, that city will have furnished $220,000,000.

DOCTORS WAR OVER MILK.

Trusts in Raw and Certified Milk.

Charges and Counter Charges.

From the Milk Reporter.

The Philadelphia Record, in an Atlantic City dispatch, says:

Physicians from all parts of the country who are here attending the sessions of the American Medical Association were stirred to a high pitch of excitement to-day by the publication of a letter, alleged to have been sent out by Livingston Farrand, secretary of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, attacking the Anti-Tuberculosis League, also in session here, on the ground that it was not authorized, and the counter charges of members of the league, that the National Association was interested in furthering the sale of two milk trusts, the raw and certified, to kill off the league, so that their business would be done.

Mr. Farrand was asked to-night if he had any reply to make to the charge that he sent out the letter.

"I have heard about the articles appearing in the morning papers," was Mr. Farrand's reply, "but I have not read them and have nothing whatever to say."

"You wrote the letter, did you not?" he was asked.

"I have nothing to say," I will not discuss it," was the reply.

Dr. S. F. Knapp, of New York, who was alleged to have asked William Pitt Mills, that city, whether or not Dr. Knapp had any business interest to serve by his connection with the league and to whose remark Dr. Brown took exception at yesterday's meeting, discussing the matter as it arises, has returned home and could not be seen.

Capt. William C. Massey, of Atlanta, Ga., acting secretary of the league, said that the letter was no definite proof of the secrets of attacks on the league until an Atlantic City physician turned over Farrand's letter to Dr. Brown. William Pitt Mills, of New York, is the man who sold, without any pledge of secrecy, that there were trusts in raw and certified milk in New York, and that the president of the National Association, Dr. Herman M. Biggs, was interested in the sale of certified milk, and was in league with the trusts. We will emerge from this fight, stronger before the people than ever in our history.

The above article only goes to prove that when doctors fall out the fur will fly, and there are generally charges and counter charges, and as far as milk is concerned the conflict has been raging for at least fifty years, while the milk-consuming public has been taking their milk as of old, straight, or w or as usually wisky, egg, or sugar, and as is usually wisky, egg, dying at the doctor's hands after all.

We certainly feel safer at the tender mercies of the cow than in the hands of experts who never agree while they can achieve prominence and notoriety before the press and public. People are beginning to get sick and tired of the continual bickerings of such testimony, and are placing it in its true light and giving it a proper value. Doctors are like lawyers, they agree and disagree, while the audiences look on at the pretty fight and wonder who will win out. The producers and dealers are not supposed to know anything of their end of the business, the doctors knowing it all. So we take it that the legislature will next pass a law compelling the practical end of the milk business to take a college education before embarking in the same. Then with certified cows, sterilized apparatus, they will be legally qualified to enter the milk business and charge 20 or 25 cents per quart for the lactical fluid to help pay for the sign, "Doctor of Milk," forgetful of the fact that we have been charged for years with doctoring milk, although then not under the protection of the law.

FLAMES AWAKEN FIREMEN.

Members of Engine No. 16 Respond to Call Just Across Street.

Flames, instead of the usual deep-sounding gong, awakened the firemen of Engine Company No. 16 early yesterday morning, when they hustled out of bed to fight a fire which had started in the kitchen of the Amies restaurant, 1206 Pennsylvania avenue. The engine-house is in D street, just across the way from the D street entrance to the restaurant. The fire was confined to the third story of the building, where the kitchen is located. The engine and chemical wagon were brought into the street in front of the fire house and the work of extinguishing the blaze begun. By the use of the chemical apparatus the fire was got under control in a few minutes.

GET NO TRACE OF VOLKER

Relatives and Police Spend Day in Fruitless Search.

Reward of $100 Offered by Father Kane for Return of Young Man. Father Still Hopeful.

Mystery still surrounds the sudden disappearance of Henry Volker, the eighteen-day-old boy who has not been seen since Monday at Glymont. His body has not been found, and there are some who are inclined to believe that the boy is alive and lost in the woods.

One hundred dollars reward was offered yesterday by Father Kane, of St. Aloysius Church, for the return of young Volker, the deacon's wife's son, who was found in his class-mates from Gonzaga College for a day's outing. His clothes were found on the bank of the river.

Father Kane and Father O'Brien, and the parents of the missing boy, Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Volker, of 1122 K street northwest, visited Glymont and the surrounding country yesterday and returned to the city last night. Their efforts to find even a trace of the boy were without success.

Two colored men informed several of the people living in the neighborhood that they had seen a boy wandering through the dense woods Monday afternoon with nothing on but a bathing suit. The police, however, do not place much confidence in the stories told by the negroes. The woods and parts of the surrounding country have been gone over to a certain extent. The father still clings to the hope that his son is alive, and that possibly he became sick and lost his way.

When it was discovered that young Volker was missing Monday evening, several people remembered that during the afternoon, when quite a crowd of boys was in swimming, they had seen two boys hang above the water three times in succession and then disappear. At that time the witnesses paid no attention to the incident, thinking, of course, that the hands had been put up by some youngster merely trying to find the bottom of the river. The theory has been advanced that the hands were those of the Volker boy, and that it was his last effort to save himself.

Henry Volker was a favorite at the Gonzaga College, not only with his schoolmates, but among the teachers of the institution as well. He graduated this spring.
